

Graduate School of Architecture & Urban Design

The Graduate School of Architecture & Urban Design cultivates the designer's identity as a leader and as both an expressive individual and a socially responsible citizen. Our programs emphasize the physicality of design through regard for site, purpose, material, technique, and meaning. Our commitment to the ethical practice of architecture, landscape architecture, and urban design spans disciplines, contending cultural theories and the range of representational media.

The Graduate School of Architecture & Urban Design provides an intimate environment for learning, with individualized attention in the design studios and correspondingly small lectures and seminars. The independent character of a student's abilities is demonstrated and tested in the final semester through the Degree Project, in which students work individually with faculty and critics. The graduate school also has a strong teaching and research assistant program, with approximately one out of every four students engaged in this learning experience.
